

News from EmOcean After Finish Today:

The past 24 hours they called off all watches and called for all hands on deck. They truly committed to riding the rail home. Anna Hofford said that they were flying downwind for the majority of the trip sailing 3-4 days with the kite up (a big one and a smaller one). They even reached with it until there was no option but to sail upwind. The last 12 miles was definitely the toughest sailing dead upwind in 30 knots of breeze with 5-7 foot choppy seas. Anna sounded elated to be on land, and she should be with a stellar performance aboard EmOcean!
