

May 25, 2007: Final Report for Today

E's Alee and its intrepid student –crew has finally thrown in the towel and turned on heir engine. It has been a long haul for the small boat and kudos to them for sticking it out for more than 1 week at sea, with the final 3-4 days in brutal, bumpy seas. We look forward to seeing them in Bermuda, hopefully before the big event on Saturday night.

Dreamscape, the only Bermuda entry in the race, finished earlier today at 05:01 EDT, in time for the captain and crew to join the Gosling's Dark n' Stormy reception at the Fairmont Hamilton Princess this evening. They sailed a tough race on a small boat and we will do our best to get some first-hand accounts of the trip tomorrow. For now, we will await the arrival of Celadon and Attitude Adjustment III at the docks.
